Talent and Employee Retention Strategies

استراتيجيات الاحتفاظ بالمواهب والكفاءات وتطويرها

13 – 17 March 2023

London / United Kingdom

Introduction

Talent management refers to the processes and practices of managing employees to achieve desired objectives. Used effectively, talent management can help organizations optimize the efforts of its employees and achieve business success.

To support talent management processes, we must address all elements in the process including: recruiting, performance management, succession planning and career development, compensation management, and employee communications. These elements address talent management in an integrated fashion, making links between performance and compensation, performance and recruiting, succession and development, and other relevant functions. In this way, the talent management can support efforts to hire the most qualified candidates, attract and engage high impact employees, and build future leaders for high impact positions.
